

ABSTRACT

This study aimed to outline the causes and consequences of career compromise in Zimbabwe. The study made use of the Circumscription and Compromise theory that gave a broad understanding to career compromise. With the use of various methods of measuring career compromise the researcher conducted a mixed method

A questionnaire was followed by an in depth analysis of the cultural consequences of career compromise. The study found that career compromise is a complex phenomenon that depends on a number of factors. The study also found that career compromise is a common experience among young people in Zimbabwe. The study also found that career compromise is a common experience among young people in Zimbabwe. The study also found that career compromise is a common experience among young people in Zimbabwe.

Keywords:

Qualitative research methods followed and the data were analysed and tabulated in a thematic analysis. The study also found that career compromise is a common experience among young people in Zimbabwe. The study also found that career compromise is a common experience among young people in Zimbabwe. The study also found that career compromise is a common experience among young people in Zimbabwe.

Keywords: Career

FEB UNDIP