

CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSION

Based on the analysis of the main character, Mr. Fox, in the book Fantastic Mr. Fox, he is portrayed as a fox with a proud and brave personality who shows great affection for his family and even for other animals. Because of his personality, he faces many challenges, but he manages to resolve them successfully.

The analysis shows that Mr. Fox's personality develops through his environment. He faces various challenges that force him to quickly make the safest decisions. Starting out as a cocky fox, Mr. Fox ends up becoming the leader of five families. The personality development that occurs in Mr. Fox results in a quantitatively acquired personality, where the personality is not completely overhauled, but rather reduced or emphasized according to social interactions. Also, Mr. Fox did not suddenly drastically change his personality. He goes through many processes of self-awareness until he finally changes naturally with the help of his family and friends. Thus, it can be said that Mr. Fox went through his personality development quantitatively and slowly, which made him accepted in his community.

The personality development that occurred in Mr. Fox is caused by environmental pressure. He is forced to choose the safety of his family and other animals. This causes Mr. Fox not to act recklessly as he had before. Mr. Fox unconsciously embraced them to survive together based on his feelings of guilt. He acknowledges his mistakes and tries to make amends, and his closest animals feel his remorse. With that, the urge to develop Mr. Fox's personality comes from the animals around him. In addition, changes in the environment, changes in roles, and strong motivation encourage Mr. Fox to develop his personality healthily.

The character of Mr. Fox, initially portrayed as a proud and carefree fox, leads the analysis to focus on his personality development, as he evolves into a more cautious fox in order to ensure the safety of himself and his family. This personality development unfolds through the narrative and conflicts experienced by Mr. Fox. Thus, Mr. Fox's new personality is formed.

For future research, it is suggested to analyze the character of Mr. Fox from Fantastic Mr. Fox using the same approach but with a different theory. Mr. Fox possesses a very unique and undeniable character, and the narrative that builds the story also portrays him effectively. Therefore, Mr. Fox can be examined through the lens of other psychological theories, opening up a wide range of perspectives. An analysis of Mr. Fox can also be conducted through his interactions with various characters in the story or by examining the traumatic events he experiences and how he reacts to them. With that in mind, it is highly recommended to analyze Mr. Fox from various perspectives in order to gain a deeper understanding of this character.
