

CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSION

This research thesis discusses the eight determinants affecting Angel's insecure-to-secure personality development in the movie Redeeming Love (2022). In this chapter, the writer concludes the problems which are discussed in the previous chapter. Angel's characterization is shown as a beautiful girl since her childhood. She is an innocent child who listens to her mother very well and follows her in either joyful or tough times. Unfortunately, she grows up being a cruel person and a professional sex-worker. The writer describes the internal conflict that happens between Angel and herself when she has anxiety about her marriage in the future. There is also the external conflict between Angel and the Duchess when she keeps opposing the Duchess' words. The Duchess' greediness annoys Angel every time she asks for her rights.

The extrinsic elements discussion includes eight determinants affecting Angel's personality and how it determines her insecure-to-secure personality development. Angel becomes full of insecurities because of her terrifying childhood trauma and sexual abusive environment. She turns into a cold and emotionless person who never gives and receives love from anybody. Angel's secure personality development appears after the presence of Michael Hosea, a faithful man who believes that Angel is the answer to his prayers. She begins to develop a sense of security within herself. She embraces her relationship with others and feels emotionally safe. She is now capable of choosing the life she desires by having high self-esteem.
