

CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSION

This research thesis discusses the Inferiority Complex of the Main Female Character in Tom Moore's Wolfwalkers (2020) Movie. The main female character who is Robyn Goodfellowe suffers from an inferiority complex. The writer uses the library resource to conduct the study. Related to library research, the writer uses primary and secondary data. The primary data of this thesis research is Wolfwalkers film and the secondary data are the reference books, the previous studies, and the journal articles which are used to support this thesis research. The writer uses psychological approach by using Adler's the inferiority complex to analyze the character.

The intrinsic discussion explains the character, characterization and conflict based around Robyn Goodfellowe's personality. Her characteristics are obedient, restraint, empathetic, and reserved. Her characteristics is developed by her internal conflicts contain her loneliness and self-actualization. Her external conflicts are her relationship with her father, her neighbors and the authority.

The extrinsic discussion explains the character's struggles with the inferiority complex that contain the signs, the causes, the effects and the treatment of her inferiority complex. The writer uses Adler's theory of inferiority complex to analyze the signs, the causes, the effects, and the treatment of the inferiority complex of Robyn Goodfellowe. The signs of inferiority complex in the character is low self-esteem, self-doubt, and distress. The causes of her inferiority complex are her individual goal, her inability to adapting, and her limited freedom of movement. The effects of inferiority complex to her are dependency character, psychological growth deprivation, sleep paralysis and self-projection on others. The treatment of the inferiority complex of the character is finding a strong support system.