

ABSTRACT

The purpose of this study is to analyze the effectiveness of the village government in managing the village revenue and expenditure budget. This study is a qualitative study with a descriptive approach using data collection methods through interviews and documentation. Then the data obtained is analyzed using data analysis techniques through several stages as follows: categorization, rationalization of relations, data presentation, drawing conclusions. This study was conducted in Sumampir Village, Rembang District, Purbalingga Regency.

Based on the data obtained in the field, the author can conclude that the management of the village revenue and expenditure budget carried out by the village government has effective and ineffective results. In the management of the village revenue and expenditure budget in the field of village development and the field of emergency and urgent disaster management. The management of the village revenue and expenditure budget in the field of community development and community empowerment has been effective.

Keywords; Effectiveness of the village government, management of the village revenue and expenditure budget, the field of village development, the field of community development, the field of community empowerment, the field of emergency and urgent disaster management.