

ABSTRACT

The library as an implementing unit within the tertiary institution has a function as a supporting factor for improving the quality of tertiary institutions. This study discusses the role of the Library in supporting the quality of institutions at Diponegoro University. The purpose of this research is to find out how the role of Library in supporting the quality of institutions at Diponegoro University. This study uses qualitative methods, with data collection techniques used in this study are observation, interviews and document studies. Informants were selected using purposeful sampling, researchers obtained five informants who were right for the purpose of the study. Based on the findings in this study the role played by the Library of Diponegoro University to support the quality of tertiary institutions is to apply the national library standards in library management, the collections provided by the library are in accordance with the university's objectives while still paying attention to the needs of the visitors. training for their human resources

Keywords: the role of libraries, library management, higher education libraries